Only a Precautionary Measure to

Comptroller Ledwith, of the Emigrants' Bank, Explains Matters.

Depositors in the savings banks of New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City and Will-iamsburg have no cause for alarm over the action taken yesterday by the savings bank presidents at the meeting of the Emigrant Industrial Bank recommend-public confidence and render such a step unnecessary.

This bank will continue to pay its depositors on demand until otherwise instructed by its directors, should they decide to hold a meeting for this purpose. I see no cause for alarm at present, and am free to express my willingness to conduct business upon its present basis.

It is said that there is no intention of preventing depositors from obtaining their money in small or moderate sums, and that in any case drafts would be paid just as usual.

The only object of requiring notice would be to check the movement which has been developed recently of withdrawing the entire amount on deposit.

well as the banks themselves, from inconvenience.
The rule exists in nearly all savings institutions that when a depositor wishes i to withdraw his account he must give thirty days notice, if the amount is under $300, and sixty days' notice if the amount exceeds that figure. Usually, however, the rule is not enforced.
"It is not generally known, perhaps," said Mr. Ledwith, "that the drain upon the savings banks in this city has been so heavy during the past month, but since July 1 more than $10,000,000 has been drawn out by depositors.
"This loss of ready cash may inconvenience many institutions, and while they have an accuration of a sests in the form of United States bonds and other equally good securities, they could not even sell these to get currency in the present state of the money market.
"In fact, it is a physical impossibility to get the notes and currency which are needed. There are two class."

"In fact, it is a physical impossibil-ity to get the notes and currency which are needed. There are two class-es of depositors who are drawing out their money. One of those consists of the people who are affected by the pre-vailing distrust and lack of confidence. While they are not really alarmed about the situation or believe that their bank is in any danger, they like to have their money in their pockets and feel it there. They haven't nerve or backbone enough to put it into any thing else, and so the money is actually withdrawn from circulation. This has done much to as gravate the situation and create an artificial scarcity of money, for I think the people of this class are in the great majority.

ficial scarcity of money, for I think the people of this class are in the great majority.

"The other class," continued Mr. Ledwith, "consists of those who have laid up a snug little sum, and now, when they see a chance of investing it at a good profit in some of the Wall street bargains, have drawn it out, gone down into the street, made their purchases and taken their securities away with them.

"This money, of course, goes right into circulation, but there are comparatively few who have the nerve to do this. The stories that the savings banks are hoarding money are untrue as a general rule. We send all the surplus cash to our discount bank, where it is paid out over the counter, and thus keep it in circulation as much as possible.

"I do not think the posting of nation."

thus keep it in circulation as much as possible.

"I do not think the posting of notices by the savings banks will have the effect of frightening depositors. On the contrary, it ought to make them more confident, and it should certainly result in checking the unnecessary drain on the resources of the banks by making it more difficult for the people to withdraw their funds."

How many of the savings banks would decide to require their depositors to give notice Mr. Ledwith could not say. He stated very positively, however, that none of the banks would take any action in the matter till next week.

There was a long line of depositors in front of the paying teller's deak at the Emigrant Savings Bank this morning withdrawing their money. A few were making deposits.

Although it was the general concensus of opinion among the presidents at yesterday's meeting that such a step would be advisable, in view of the present condition of the money market and the heavy drain which had been made by depositors during the last few weeks, there is to be no compulsion about it, and the only action taken was to refer the matter to the officers of each bank with the recommendation that the notices be posted.

According to Comptroller David, Ledwith, of the Emigrant Savings Bank, this is not a confession of weakness on the part of any of the institutions in the part of any of the contrary, simply a step to protect depositors. as well as the banks themselves, from inconvenience.

"My husband didn't like it. Why? Because I used to have visions by going in a trance, and then I would tell him all about his little fitrtations, dinners with the boys, &c.

"How did I do it? Well, I'll tell you. My husband had two desks in his office, one he kept his business letters in. I always had free access to that one and all its contents. But the other one was always carefully locked.

"Of course, with a woman's curiosity I wanted to know just what that desk contained, so I had a set of duplicate keys made from a wax impression. Then, after carefully perusing a recent billet doux, or noting a photograph with the autograph of the fair original on the back, I would go into an imaginary trance, and describe to my husband what I saw in his desk, read the letters and tell him their exact location.

the "Emperor's Field," and goes through the form of ploughing and other work of the husbandman.

One day recently, says the N. A. U. Cable, the Emperor set out at daybreak from his palace with a numerous and magnificent train of courtiers and others. Before breakfast the Emperor arrived at the shrines of the delty presiding over agriculture, and His Majesty stopping to offer up his thanksgiving and sacrifices.

After changing his dress the morning repast was served, at the end of which the Emperor proceeded to the field, at the four corners of which were creted four payllions where the seeds of wheat and other cereals were placed. In the centre were numbers of majern and other cereals were placed. In the centre were numbers of majern and other cereals were placed. ### SHRINE OF SAINTE ANNE Pilgrimages of Pious Bretons to the Shrine of Their Patron Saint.

A foreign exchange prints a most interesting description of the famous shrine in Brittany dedicated to Sainte Anne. The scene, the paper declares, when the worshippers are gathered together, of collective devotion, has few parallels in Europe. Every pew is full of worshippers.

The aisles are thronged with men and women, not lying down, for there is no room, but curled up and squatting in miscellaneous attitudes, leaning their sleepy heads against each other or the wall.

steepy heads against each other or the wall.

Slowly threading your way up the dimly lighted nave, past the bronze of St. Peter, you are attracted first by a brilliant illumination in front of an altar in the south transept. Here you find row after row of plous Bretons kneeling before the golden statue of their patron saint, while others thrust their beads and knickknacks into the hands of a novice within the altar rail.

The lad lays each article against the glass pane covering the remnant of the miraculous statue, and hands it back to the happy owner.

ing the enforcement of the rule requiring depositors to give thirty and sixty days' notice of their intention to withdraw their funds.

The rule has not yet gone into operation in any of the banks, and will not until each bank has taken action on the matter individually through its own Board of Directors.

behind car No. 42, which was in charge of Conductor Hugh Rellly, and, jumping on the rear platform, dealt the latter a blow in the mouth, knocking him down.

The man tried to get his hand into Rellly's pockets, but gave it up, and ran up the Bowery towards First street.

Rellly shouted for the police, and Policeman Polilick, of the Mulberry street station, at once gave chase.

After a sharp run Pollick caught up
